Your Personality Type

Extraversion vs Introversion

11% Extraversion — 89% Introversion

Strong Introversion

You are strongly introverted. You draw your energy from solitude and internal reflection. You prefer quiet, low-stimulation environments and deep conversations with a few close people rather than large social gatherings. You are likely thoughtful, reflective, and independent. Extended social interaction can feel exhausting, and you need significant alone time to feel your best.

Sensing vs Intuition

89% Sensing — 11% Intuition

Strong Sensing

You are strongly oriented toward sensing. You focus on concrete, tangible information and trust what you can see, hear, and touch. You are practical, detail-oriented, and grounded in the present moment. You prefer proven methods and step-by-step approaches. You excel at working with facts and real-world data rather than abstract theories.

Thinking vs Feeling

92% Thinking — 8% Feeling

Strong Thinking

You are strongly oriented toward thinking. You make decisions based on logic, objectivity, and rational analysis. You value truth and fairness applied consistently, even when it may be uncomfortable. You are analytical and strategic, and you tend to evaluate situations impersonally. You may sometimes be perceived as blunt, but your strength lies in clear, principled reasoning.

Judging vs Perceiving

94% Judging — 6% Perceiving

Strong Judging

You are strongly oriented toward judging. You prefer structure, organization, and clear plans. You like to make decisions promptly and feel satisfied when tasks are completed and things are settled. You are disciplined, orderly, and prefer predictability. You may feel uncomfortable with ambiguity and last-minute changes.
