Your Personality Type

Extraversion vs Introversion

44% Extraversion — 56% Introversion

Balanced Extraversion-Introversion

You show a balanced mix of extraversion and introversion. You can adapt comfortably to both social and solitary situations. Sometimes you enjoy being around people and drawing energy from the group, while other times you prefer quiet reflection. This flexibility allows you to navigate different social contexts with ease.

Sensing vs Intuition

39% Sensing — 61% Intuition

Moderate Intuition

You lean toward intuition. You enjoy exploring ideas, patterns, and possibilities beyond the immediate facts. You tend to look at the big picture and think about future potential rather than focusing solely on present realities. You are imaginative and enjoy connecting seemingly unrelated concepts, though you can still attend to details when needed.

Thinking vs Feeling

39% Thinking — 61% Feeling

Moderate Feeling

You lean toward feeling in your decision-making. You give significant weight to personal values, empathy, and how decisions affect people. You are warm, compassionate, and attentive to others' emotional needs. While you can think logically, you ultimately prioritize harmony and human connection when making important choices.

Judging vs Perceiving

33% Judging — 67% Perceiving

Moderate Perceiving

You lean toward perceiving. You prefer to keep your options open and enjoy a flexible, adaptable approach to life. You tend to be curious and open-minded, exploring possibilities before committing. While you can follow plans when necessary, you prefer spontaneity and may find rigid schedules constraining.
